

Outbreak in Sonoma County nursing homes

There are currently 21 licensed skilled nursing facilities in Sonoma County, though one is closing. They provide long-term care for patients suffering from chronic illness and people with disabilities, and short-term care for people recovering from surgery and acute illness. Most have large senior populations. Facilities are required to report COVID infections and deaths within 24 hours. State regulators do not publicly disclose specific numbers for facilities with 11 or fewer COVID infections or deaths. <11 indicates there has been at least one case at a facility and fewer than 11.
